TWO DAMS BURST, WIPING OUT SMALL VILLAGE

HEAVY PROPERTY DAMAGE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

GRADUALLY RISING RIVERS PRESENT NEW THREATS TO RESIDENTS

DREAD RECURRENCE OF TORNADO STORMS OF PAST 2 DAYS

Boston, May 4.—(U.P.)—Hundreds of lives were imperiled and a small village was wiped out, and property damage estimated at more than $1,000,000 was caused by the bursting of two dams in northern New Hampshire during the night.

Gradually-rising rivers today presented new threats to residents of a wide area in New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont, with more floods and virtual certainty in the event of a recurrence of the torrential storms of the past two days.

Bursting of the Lake Abenaki dam at Dixville, N. H., sent a wall of water sweeping down the Mohawk river valley, washing away the hamlet of Kilderville as members of 10 families looked helplessly on from a nearby hilltop.

Only a flood warning, broadcast well in advance of the breaking of the dam, prevented loss of life there. After the rushing waters had swept through Kilderville, the flood cut through a section of the town of Colebrook, six miles away, destroying 30 houses, barns and garages.

Half a dozen houses also were damaged by the bursting of a small dam at Belmont, N. H., between Franklin and Tilton.

In Maine, the Piscataquis river overflowed its banks, inundating parts of Dover, Foxcroft and Guilford, interrupting railroad traffic and flooding hundreds of acres of farm lands.

While reports from Vermont told of rising rivers and threatened floods no serious damage had occurred in that state. In Swanton, Vt., near the Canadian border, however, a miniature tornado worked havoc, caused property damage estimated at $200,000 and injured two persons.

CHECKING STORM TOLL IN SEVEN SOUTHERN STATES

The storm situation in the south and mid-west was improved today but a new menace appeared in New England, where flood conditions imperiled hundreds of lives.

A small village was wiped out and great property damage caused by the bursting of two dams in New Hampshire. Rivers were rising in Maine and Vermont.

A check of the storm damage in seven southern states east of the Mississippi showed 38 persons dead, nearly 200 injured, and widespread damage to property and crops. The deaths were spread through Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and North Carolina.

After 24 hours of gales on the Great Lakes shipping was beginning to move cautiously. Two vessels were aground in Lake Erie and a passenger ship that had been disabled was being towed to port.

The eastern seaboard reported heavy damage from continued rains.

Chicago, Ill., May 4.—(U.P.)—For eight hours yesterday, Mrs. Emily Hermanson, 58, suffered the agony of a tragedy which was even greater than one several years ago which rendered her a helpless invalid.

Early in the day, Emily's devoted husband, Sven, carried her to her chair by the window, tucked blankets around her and sat down to keep her company.

Suddenly, Sven's face became distorted with pain. He pressed his hands against his heart. Emily, who barely can raise her voice above a whisper, called to him.

He tried to answer but a second seizure forced him to the floor near the chair of his helpless mate. His struggle became more feeble and finally ceased. Death's pallor was visible to Emily.

Then for eight hours, Emily waited. Her whispers never carried outside the room. A rent collector finally heard her sobs and found her there in grim company.

The heaviest losses were believed to be on the Persian side of the border.

Secretary of Treasury Mellon Legally Holds Cabinet Post Despite His Stock Holdings

SENATE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE GIVES DECISION TODAY

VOTE OF THE BODY STOOD AT 8 TO 5 IT IS ANNOUNCED

MAJORITY HOLDS HOLDINGS DO NOT VIOLATE 100 YEAR OLD STATUTE

Washington, May 4.—(U.P.)—The senate judiciary committee voted 8 to 5 today to report to the senate that Secretary of Treasury Mellon is legally holding his cabinet post despite his extensive stock holdings.

The majority of the committee held that Mellon's holdings did not violate the 100-year-old statute requiring that no secretary of treasury should be directly or indirectly interested in trade or commerce. Four members of the committee did not vote.

The vote came at the seventh session of the committee breaking a deadlock which had existed for nearly a week. The favorable report was drawn by Senator Steiwer, Rep., Ore., and was substitute for the report of Chairman Norris which proposed to state Mellon was violating the law. The Norris report was defeated 10 to 3.

A motion then was made to open hearings on the case in order to call Mellon for an explanation of a deposition he gave in a civil suit concerning his holdings in the Aluminum Company of America. This motion was defeated 8 to 5.

Steiwer will present his majority report to the senate Monday and the matter is expected to be fought out to a vote on the floor.

The final roll call on the Steiwer resolution follows:

For Mellon 8. Republicans 7. Deneen, Illinois; Robinson, Indiana; Steiwer, Oregon; Waterman, Colorado; Hastings, Delaware; Burton, Ohio, and Gillett, Massachusetts.

Democrats 1. Overman, North Carolina.

Against Mellon 5. Republicans 3. Borah, Idaho; Blaine, Wisconsin; Norris, Nebraska.

Democrats 2. Walsh, Montana, and King, Utah.

Not voting 4. Democrats: Ashurst, Arizona; Caraway, Arkansas; Stephens, Mississippi and Dill, Washington.

The only three who voted for the Norris report were Norris, King and Walsh. The motion to open hearings was defeated by the same line-up as the 8 to 5 on the Steiwer committee those voting with Mellon casting their majority against opening the hearings.

Berlin, May 4.—(U.P.)—Berlin's Neu Koelln district of terror was in a virtual state of siege today after a night of the most bitter fighting since the extremist elements turned a May day celebration into a march of death.

The German government may send a protest to Moscow against Soviet speeches which were believed to have inspired the Berlin rioting.

When the toll was counted today, five more persons had been added to the list of dead. Three of them were women. Unconfirmed reports placed the dead at six in today's rioting.

The total dead to date was 18, with 110 persons, including policemen, in the hospitals suffering from serious injuries.

MEXICAN REVOLT NOW ONLY ABOUT CLOSED INCIDENT

STATEMENT IS MADE BY PRESIDENT EMILIO PORTES GIL

Mexico City, May 4.—(U.P.)—The Mexican revolt has been put down and the government will center its efforts henceforth in crushing minor disturbances, including religious fanatics, President Emilio Portes Gil announced today.

Fifteen thousand men have been mobilized at Hermosillo, Sonora, to fight the fanatics—or Cristeros, as they are known. They will be used in the state of Nayarit, Jalisco, Colima, Michoan, Zacatecas and Durango.

Former President Calles, who commanded the victorious federal army, said the new army would be "of such enormous strength that it would be able energetically and decisively to end the campaign against the fanatics with the same success as the military campaign."

President Portes Gil had issued a statement a short time before Calles' message was received, officially proclaiming the end of the revolt which broke on March 3. The statement said the Cristeros would be annihilated within two months.

BERLIN POLICE

USE BARBWIRE

THROW UP ENTANGLEMENT AROUND NEUKOELLN RIOT AREA

Berlin, May 4.—(U.P.)—Berlin police throw barbed-wire entanglements around the bloody Neukolln district today to aid in their efforts to end communist outbreaks which in the last 24 hours added five more to the growing list of dead.

This brought to 21 the total of 21 of known slain since the beginning of the May Day disorders, according to official announcement, but there were reports that the communists, in keeping with the rules of their organization, had hidden other dead, and that the total might be as high as 24.

The police department claimed to have the situation well in hand, but there is still a grim air of warfare around the workers area of Neukolln. The barb wire entanglements were reminiscent of the post-war Spartacus revolt period when blood flowed freely in Berlin.

Among those killed last night were three women, all of whom were killed when they stepped to the balconies of their own homes, and a male combatant who happened to be crossing the street.

MANY FUNERALS

FOR VICTIMS AT RYE COVE SCHOOL

Knoxville, Tenn., May 4.—(U.P.)—Slow procession of hacks, automobiles and horses were today plodding at intervals over the muddy roads of Rye Cove in Virginia, as the little community went about burying its school children who perished Thursday afternoon in their tornado wrecked school house.

The body of little Emma Lane, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Lane of Rye Cove will rest at the crest of a grassy knoll overlooking the tragic site of the school house where she first attended as a first grade pupil. A second mound may appear on the hill soon, as Emma's sister, 14 years old, is not expected to live.

James Carter, 14, was buried in the Morrison family graveyard in the Cove.

The body of Miss Eva Carter, 24-year-old grade teacher, was to be buried at the Peter Carter grave yard on Cove creek.

The double coffin of the little Fletcher girls, Monnie, 14, and Bernice, 7, of Rye Cove, was to be taken to Stanley town.

CHICAGO IN REVOLT AGAINST GANGSTER EVIL

RISES AGAINST RACKETEERING AND POLITICAL CORRUPTION

COUNTY AND FEDERAL GRAND JURY ACTION AGAINST 124 MEN

Chicago, May 4.—(U.P.)—Chicago's long-heralded revolt against gangster, racketeering and political corruption graduated today from a campaign to a state of accomplishment.

At the end of a week of county and federal grand jury action against 124 men, citizens who long ago refused to take any stock in "cleanup" promises awoke to find the following results of the law's work:

1—Eighty-one persons indicted for alleged conspiracy in the Chicago Heights liquor ring which is alleged to have produced $36,000,000 worth of alcohol in four years and to have been responsible for majority of 68 gang murders committed in and near the suburb.

2—Fifteen men, including the former president and six members of the present board of the Chicago Sanitary District indicted on charges of conspiracy and embezzlement of tax-payers' money.

3—Twenty-eight men, including 6 police captains and several powerful politicians indicted for alleged conspiracy in a slot machine and gambling syndicate which assertedly paid as high as $25,000 a day in graft and protection money.

4—Disclosure of a widespread traffic in machine guns by the employment of ballistics—a scientific study of firearms—in the investigation of the St. Valentine's day massacre which threatens to seriously hamper gangland's access to its favorite method of assassination.

The outstanding accomplishment was the county grand jury indictments in the sanitary district scandal. Former President T. I. Crowe and six trustees are charged with staging "wild liquor parties" with tax-payers' money to a total of approximately a quarter of a million dollars.

The indictment of six police captains and officials for alleged connection with slot machine syndicate was accompanied by a threat of possible indictment of 24 more. Those named by the county grand jury were alleged to have paid and received large sums of graft money.

The Chicago Heights liquor ring federal indictments gave startling figures on alcohol manufacture and linked the names of police heads, former and present officials. A chief of police, two former chiefs and other officers were included among the defendants.

The terror of witnesses who have appeared in the gang massacre inquest testifies to gangland's growing fear of the methods employed by the new regime under State's Attorney John Swanson.

The ballistics experts have traced a large number of machine guns which have been sold openly to gangsters and claim to have identified two members of the massacre squad through the new methods.

CHICAGO IN REVOLT AGAINST GANGSTER EVIL

RISES AGAINST RACKETEERING AND POLITICAL CORRUPTION

COUNTY AND FEDERAL GRAND JURY ACTION AGAINST 124 MEN

Chicago, May 4.—(UP)—Chicago's long-heralded revolt against gangster, racketeering and political corruption graduated today from a campaign to a state of accomplishment.

At the end of a week of county and federal grand jury action against 124 men, citizens who long ago refused to take any stock in "cleanup" promises awoke to find the following results of the law's work:

1—Eighty-one persons indicted for alleged conspiracy in the Chicago Heights liquor ring which is alleged to have produced $36,000,000 worth of alcohol in four years and to have been responsible for majority of 68 gang murders committed in and near the suburb.

2—Fifteen men, including the former president and six members of the present board of the Chicago Sanitary District indicted on charges of conspiracy and embezzlement of tax-payers' money.

3—Twenty-eight men, including 6 police captains and several powerful politicians indicted for alleged conspiracy in a slot machine and gambling syndicate which assertedly paid as high as $25,000 a day in graft and protection money.

4—Disclosure of a widespread traffic in machine guns by the employment of ballistics—a scientific study of firearms—in the investigation of the St. Valentine's day massacre which threatens to seriously hamper gangland's access to its favorite method of assassination.

The outstanding accomplishment was the county grand jury indictments in the sanitary district scandal. Former President T. I. Crowe and six trustees are charged with staging "wild liquor parties" with tax-payers' money to a total of approximately a quarter of a million dollars.

The indictment of six police captains and officials for alleged connection with slot machine syndicate was accompanied by a threat of possible indictment of 24 more. Those named by the county grand jury were alleged to have paid and received large sums of graft money.

The Chicago Heights liquor ring federal indictments gave startling figures on alcohol manufacture and linked the names of police heads, former and present officials. A chief of police, two former chiefs and other officers were included among the defendants.

The terror of witnesses who have appeared in the gang massacre inquest testifies to gangland's growing fear of the methods employed by the new regime under State's Attorney John Swanson.

The ballistics experts have traced a large number of machine guns which have been sold openly to gangsters and claim to have identified two members of the massacre squad through the new methods.

'Business is Business'—and something more

The old adage implies that business is always cold, uncompromising and selfish.

The tradition is refuted at this bank by courtesy, friendliness, and a sincere desire to accommodate you.

...and Mrs Jones told Mrs Smith.

"It's the Best-kept house in town!"

People talk. They can't be expected to do otherwise. Our neighbors notice our personal appearance and gauge our prosperity on that basis. If we dress shabbily or carelessly, it would appear to be a sign of individual failure—we are not making good—same way with homes. If a house needs painting and if its approach is unsightly, neighbors gossip. On the other hand, a well-kept-up establishment echoes prosperity and civic pride.

Will Present First Program of Season at U. C. T. Auditorium May 8

Thirty members of the Brainerd Ladies band will motor to Verndale tomorrow to present a concert there in the afternoon.

The concert will be the first one out of the city to be presented by them this year.

The first home program will be given by the band Wednesday evening, May 8 at the U. C. T. auditorium.

The band has been practicing consistently for months for this summer's musical presentations.

"It's the Best-kept house in town!"

People talk. They can't be expected to do otherwise. Our neighbors notice our personal appearance and gauge our prosperity on that basis. If we dress shabbily or carelessly, it would appear to be a sign of individual failure—we are not making good—same way with homes. If a house needs painting and if its approach is unsightly, neighbors gossip. On the other hand, a well-kept-up establishment echoes prosperity and civic pride.

STEADY STREAM COMEDY ON TAP

Students of Brainerd High School Give Show for Brainerdian Benefit
LAUGH BOMBARDMENT

Sketches, Music, Minstrel Part Were All of Highest Degree of Excellence

Snowballs from the south burst all over the U. C. T. auditorium stage last night in a shower of clever dialogue to headline a perfectly wonderful bill of nonsense presented by students of the Brainerd high school for the Brainerdian benefit.

Much of the laugh bombardment hurled by the 12 "color gen'lemen" was impromptu "stuff," thrown in by the black faced comedians as they fed some 400 people with wise cracks that were nowhile ancient.

A stream of light comedy streamed through the 30 minute presentation leading up to the finale.

The minstrel show under the direction of Roy S. Lameter, school instructor, and Carl Zapffe doing to a crisp the work of interlocutor, was the wittiest bit of stage production of the evening although the entire program was one of clever arrangement and presentation.

Those inkspots from the blotter of New Orleans or fishballs as Carl Zapffe introduced them lined up as follows: end men, Ralph Anderson, Allen Johnson, Orris Larson, Harry Goedderz; singers, Ralph Hallquist, Joe Heald, Edman Jernberg, Monroe Kelly, Burton Rice, Alfred Engelhart, George McCaffrey, Allen Evans.

In the background were members of the high school orchestra who helped out over the act with a bang: piano, William McClenahan; cornet, Malcolm Lammon; trombone, Howard Gile; drums, Donald Geist, saxophones, Jerome Behme, Malcolm Ellison, Clarence Holden; violins, Victor Bourgeois, Harold Moe.

As master of ceremonies Malcolm Ellison ably filled the part. In an interesting manner he heralded each approaching act, dishing out humor generously. Hal Clarkson got his fire a bit by his responses from the audience. It was all a part of the program.

"Sauce for the Gosslings" a short snappy act depicting modern slang and a still more modern method which parents could upon necessity resort to in curing their offspring from slang was given under direction of Miss Mabel E. Mathis, English instructress, as the program's opener.

Parts were taken by the following: David Weber, as Mr. Taylor, the father who tired of admonishing reproofs to his children for slang adopted a bit of it himself to cure them; Ruth Schwartz, his wife, and Ruth Kunitz as Grandma Lee who aided and abetted his plan; Richard Ebert as Jim Ward the quarterback on the varsity who came to visit his friend Bob Ward acted by Ross Olmsted and also to renew acquaintance with the charming Elizabeth Taylor, taken by Alice Peterson.

The "vodvil" in general was presented under direction of Miss Mary Tornstrom and F. W. Elden.
Rodney saved the old homestead in the "nickle" of time by returning from Alaska with the gold dust twins to pay off the hard hearted villain who held a mortgage over the grey temples of papa and mama and the titian curls of Katrina and permit the parson to get in his good work to the happiness of all.

Parts were as follows: Papa, Elwood Johnson; Mama, Katherine Hagberg; Villain, Hugh McCaffrey; Katrina, Helen Bane; Rodney, Richard Ebert; Parson, Emil Hendrickson.

It was a silent drama, tense in its moments, reflecting the wave of sadness, cruelty, and happiness of the inhabitants of The Old Homestead, Strassburg on the Hudson.

Zane Smith as elocutionist gave the audience a word picture as to the plot of the tragic yet happily climaxed episode.

"The Hand on the Court Room Door," a takeoff on the law and its severity had the following players: Carl Zapffe as judge; Roger Callahan as defendant; Louise Clausen as the plaintiff; Arnold Jensen as the prosecuting attorney.

In "The Wreck" Alfred Abraham took the part of the sleepy watchman, David Weber as the M. and I. attorney, and Roger Kleven as the plaintiff.

David Weber as the hero in "To the Rescue" is still trying to saddle that horse to get through the barrier of fiendish Indians and bring back additional forces to save the garrison in charge of Zane Smith.

Lloyd Whitlock produced colored balls and handkerchiefs out of thin air in his act "The Great Mystifier" to the great mystification of the audience.

Bill Shakespeare wrote "Hamlet" in all sincerity and in all sincerity ten students presented a takeoff on the tragedy that was riotous in its farcical presentation.
Those having parts in "Hamlet, Hamlet": The Guards, George McCaffrey, Hugh McCaffrey, Emil Hendrickson; Hamlet, Carl Zapffe; Laertes, William McClenahan; Polonius, Clarence Dutkowski; Ghost, Allen Johnson; Ophelia, Rose Lukens; The King, Orris Larson; The Queen, Mildred Prentice.

Alfred Engelhart flitted about the stage in a dance specialty entitled "Sister Alice and Her Beau."

HOPE TO LIQUIDATE $3,000 CHURCH DEBT

Clara Lutheran Church Committees Unite to Put Over Objective in One Week

JOHN HOLVICK, CHAIRMAN

Pledges to be Payable Any Time Before October; Six Teams to Work

At the yearly meeting of the Clara Lutheran church set aside the first week of May for a special drive to collect funds to liquidate the debt on the church property and other obligations that must be taken care of. John Holvick is chairman of the committee in charge and Andrew J. Nelson is secretary-treasurer. The committee is made up of six teams with two persons in each.

The following is the lineup: Victor Peterson and Mrs. Hilding Swanson; P. A. Johnson and P. A. Peterson; C. Holmstrom and W. T. Carlson; P. Hedlund and K. O. Bergstrand; John Holvick and Ed. Wang; Etta Johnson and Anna Peterso.

The committee expects to raise about $3,000 at this time, which means of course that everyone will have to respond liberally. The pledges are payable any time before the first of October.

PLAN HIKES

Two Y. M. C. A. Junior Clubs to Take Trips for the Week End

The two Y. M. C. A. junior clubs have planned hikes for the week end. The Pathfinders with Francis George, their leader, are leaving the "Y." today noon and will take a hike in the woods adjacent to the N. P. tie plant.

Tomorrow afternoon, the Pioneers will leave the "Y." at 1:30 o'clock with Clayton Larson, their leader. Trailing, woodcraft and a wicker roast are included in the plans of both clubs.

Lace or Indian Prints Popular for Trimming

Polka dot dresses, often trimmed with lace or Indian prints are extremely popular in the Lenief collection of costumes, created for the coming summer. Such stuffs as satins, crepes, georgettes, light woolsens, heavy silks, in black, white, navy and green are favored. One dinner dress has a panel which can be dropped to form a train; an afternoon dress has a matching cape which can be tried around the waist to form a skirt volant. Short, puffed sleeves and flowers placed at back of waist are among the novelties evolved.

Premet goes in for the rather quaint old fashions. Silk alpaca is used for street costumes; skirts are reversible, being plain woolen on one side and plaid silk on the other. The waistline is normal.

Martial et Armand are featuring gay colors, with yellows, greens and plaids predominating. Their youthful models show the 1890 silhouette while those for maturer women have softer draping lower waistline.

White, Black Favored in Paris for Evening Wear

White is most fashionable for Paris evening wear and it is very becoming to dark or auburn hair or near a warm or very white skin, with natural or artificially colored cheeks and expressive features. Bright colored jewelry, like emeralds, rubies or sapphires, can be worn as necklace, earrings, bracelet or brooch. Black is always very striking when worn with blond hair and brightened up by pearls or diamonds. It is very fashionable and it can be effectively enlivened by a colored wrap. Dresses of intense colors, such as scarlet, sapphire or chrysanthemum green, are also in vogue and becoming to the same type of woman.

Smooth Linings

It has been discovered that clothes are almost ruined in weather at all damp by sitting in them for long stretches as one must do at a dinner party or a theater. The only thing which will save them is a perfectly smooth slick lining. For this purpose nothing seems better than rayon fabrics and these are being extensively used for the purpose.

How Great State Got Name

The aborigines who occupied what is now Texas had a term, "tejas," which meant "allies" or "friendly." The early Spaniards interpreted it as a tribal name and used it as a place name. With the English it took the form "Texas."

How Snake Travels

The organs of locomotion of all snakes are the muscles between the ribs. The ribs are drawn closely together first on one side and then on the other, thereby producing alternate bends of the body which result in a forward motion.

GRAPHIC OUTLINES OF HISTORY

By D. E. WHITNEY

New Orleans in 1719
In 1718, the French governor, Bienville, sent a number of convicts to clean a swamp on the present site of New Orleans and founded a town. In 1722 believing that the still primitive settlement would progress, Bienville made it the capital of the Louisiana territory. After being in the hands of Spain for a number of years, France sold the entire section to the U. S.

Hold Ideals High
God never permitted any man to hold an ideal too beautiful for His power to make it practicable.—Wendell Phillips.
Students of Brainerd High School Give Show for Brainerdian Benefit
LAUGH BOMBARDMENT
Sketches, Music, Minstrel Part Were All of Highest Degree of Excellence
Snowballs from the south burst all over the U. C. T. auditorium stage last night in a shower of clever dialogue to headline a perfectly wonderful bill of nonsense presented by students of the Brainerd high school for the Brainerdian benefit.
Much of the laugh bombardment hurled by the 12 "color gentlemen" was impromptu "stuff," thrown in by the black faced comedians as they fed some 400 people with wise cracks that were nowhile ancient.
A stream of light comedy streamed through the 30 minute presentation leading up to the finale.
The minstrel show under the direction of Roy S. Lameter, school instructor, and Carl Zapffe doing to a crisp the work of interlocutor, was the wittiest bit of stage production of the evening although the entire program was one of clever arrangement and presentation.
Those inkspots from the blotter of New Orleans or fishballs as Carl Zapffe introduced them lined up as follows: end men, Ralph Anderson, Allen Johnson, Orris Larson, Harry Goedderz; singers, Ralph Hallquist, Joe Heald, Edman Jernberg, Monroe Kelly, Burton Rice, Alfred Engelhart, George McCaffrey, Allen Evans.
In the background were members of the high school orchestra who helped out over the act with a bang; piano, William McClenahan; cornet, Malcolm Lammon; trombone, Howard Gile; drums, Donald Geist, saxophones, Jerome Behme, Malcolm Ellison, Clarence Holden; violins, Victor Bourgeois, Harold Moe.
As master of ceremonies Malcolm Ellison ably filled the part. In an interesting manner he heralded each approaching act, dishing out humor generously. Hal Clarkson got his fire a bit by his responses from the audience. It was all a part of the program.
"Sauce for the Gosslings" a short snappy act depicting modern slang and a still more modern method which parents could upon necessity resort to in curing their offspring from slang was given under direction of Miss Mabel E. Mathis, English instructress, as the program's opener.
Parts were taken by the following: David Weber, as Mr. Taylor, the father who tired of admonishing reproofs to his children for slang adopted a bit of it himself to cure them; Ruth Schwartz, his wife, and Ruth Kunitz as Grandma Lee who aided and abetted his plan; Richard Ebert as Jim Ward the quarterback on the varsity who came to visit his friend Bob Ward acted by Ross Olmsted and also to renew acquaintance with the charming Elizabeth Taylor, taken by Alice Peterson.
The "vodvil" in general was presented under direction of Miss Mary Tornstrom and F. W. Elden.
Rodney saved the old homestead in the "nickle" of time by returning from Alaska with the gold dust twins to pay off the hard hearted villain who held a mortgage over the grey temples of papa and mama and the tiffan curls of Katrina and permit the parson to get in his good work to the happiness of all.
Parts were as follows: Papa, Elwood Johnson; Mama, Katherine Hagberg; Villain, Hugh McCaffrey; Katrina, Helen Bane; Rodney, Richard Ebert; Parson, Emil Hendrickson.
It was a silent drama, tense in its moments, reflecting the wave of sadness, cruelty, and happiness of the inhabitants of The Old Homestead, Strassburg on the Hudson.
Zane Smith as elocutionist gave the audience a word picture as to the plot of the tragic yet happily climaxed episode.
"The Hand on the Court Room Door," a takeoff on the law and its severity had the following players: Carl Zapffe as judge; Roger Callahan as defendant; Louise Clausen as the plaintiff; Arnold Jensen as the prosecuting attorney.
In "The Wreck" Alfred Abraham took the part of the sleepy watchman, David Weber as the M. and I. attorney, and Roger Kleven as the plaintiff.
David Weber as the hero in "To the Rescue" is still trying to saddle that horse to get through the barrier of fiendish Indians and bring back additional forces to save the garrison in charge of Zane Smith.
Lloyd Whitlock produced colored balls and handkerchiefs out of thin air in his act "The Great Mystifier" to the great mystification of the audience.
Bill Shakespeare wrote "Hamlet" in all sincerity and in all sincerity ten students presented a takeoff on the tragedy that was riotous in its farcical presentation.
Those having parts in "Hamlet, Hamlet": The Guards, George McCaffrey, Hugh McCaffrey, Emil Hendrickson; Hamlet, Carl Zapffe; Laertes, William McClenahan; Polonius, Clarence Dutkowski; Ghost, Allen Johnson; Ophelia, Rose Lukens; The

Two Y. M. C. A. Junior Clubs to Take Trips for the Week End

The two Y. M. C. A. junior clubs have planned hikes for the week end. The Pathfinders with Francis George, their leader, are leaving the "Y." today noon and will take a hike in the woods adjacent to the N. P. tie plant.

Tomorrow afternoon, the Pioneers will leave the "Y." at 1:30 o'clock with Clayton Larson, their leader. Trailing, woodcraft and a wicker roast are included in the plans of both clubs.

Lace or Indian Prints
Popular for Trimming

Polka dot dresses, often trimmed with lace or India prints are extremely popular in the Lenef collection of costumes, created for the coming summer. Such stuffs as satins, crepes, georgettes, light woollens, heavy silks, in black, white, navy and green are favored. One dinner dress has a panel which can be dropped to form a train; an afternoon dress has a matching cape which can be tried around the waist to form a skirt.

Short, puffed sleeves and flowers placed at back of waist are among the novelties evolved. Premet goes in for the rather quaint old fashions. Silk alpaca is used for street costumes; skirts are reversible, being plain woolen on one side and plaid silk on the other. The waistline is normal.

Martial et Arnaud are featuring gay colors, with yellows, greens and plaids predominating. Their youthful models show the 1880 silhouette while those for maturer women have softer draping lower waistline.

White, Black Favored in Paris for Evening Wear

White is most fashionable for Paris evening wear and it is very becoming to dark or Auburn hair or near a warm or very white skin, with natural or artificially colored cheeks and expressive features. Bright colored jewelry, like emeralds, rubies or sapphires, can be worn as necklace, earrings, bracelet or brooch. Black is always very striking when worn with blond hair and brightened up by pearls or diamonds. It is very fashionable and it can be effectively enlivened by a colored wrap. Dresses of intense colors, such as scarlet, sapphire or chartreuse green, are also in vogue and becoming to the same type of woman.

Smooth Linings

It has been discovered that clothes are almost ruined in weather at all damp by sitting in them for long stretches as one must do at a dinner party or a theater. The only thing which will save them is a perfectly smooth slick lining. For this purpose nothing seems better than rayon fabrics and these are being extensively used for the purpose.

How Great State Got Name

The aborigines who occupied what is now Texas had a term, "tejas," which meant "allies" or "friendly." The early Spaniards interpreted it as a tribal name and used it as a place name. With the English it took the form "Texas."

How Snake Travels

The organs of locomotion of all snakes are the muscles between the ribs. The ribs are drawn closely together first on one side and then on the other, thereby producing alternate bends of the body which result in a forward motion.

GRAPHIC OUTLINES OF HISTORY

By D. E. WHITNEY

New Orleans in 1719
In 1718, the French governor, Bienville, sent a number of convicts to clean a swamp on the present site of New Orleans and founded a town. In 1722 believing that the still primitive settlement would progress, Bienville made it the capital of the Louisiana territory. After being in the hands of Spain for a number of years, France sold the entire section to the U. S.

MAKING TOWN BEAUTIFUL

THE Princeton Union tells how Princeton is being made beautiful and conveys a lesson that may be absorbed with profit by other communities.

Many of the homes in this village are now undergoing the annual spring cleaning. Every closet is being scoured from top to bottom and every dresser drawer and shelf dusted. It sometimes seems as though the good housewives in this village are just a little too energetic in their pursuit of every speck of dust, but some other members of the family might well take an example from these women and divert a little similar energy on the grounds surrounding the house.

Princeton is a beautiful village, and its chief claim to beauty lies in its wonderful shade trees and its well kept lawns. One unsightly spot, however, will spoil a whole block. Now is the time of the year when every property owner should make a strenuous effort to clean up his back yard and his alleys. It is not much for one person to make presentable his yard, but the effect of having everyone do it makes a great difference in the appearance of the entire village.

And then after all rubbish and ash heaps have been cleared away, why not take an hour or two to sow a few flower seeds? Fifty cents worth of seeds will make any lawn beautiful. If a man owns his home, as do most of the residents in this village, it is a wise act to plant one or two perennial plants each year that will come up every spring to make the home beautiful.

Shrubs add so much to the appearance of any house, and the green of all the shrubs in this section of Minnesota is the bridal wreath. It is a thing of beauty when in bloom and is graceful and attractive during the entire summer.

Princeton can be made one of the most beautiful villages in this state if every property owner will do his "bit."

HOW THEY MAKE YOU FEEL AT HOME IN SOUTH CAROLINA

THE South meets the tourist with a welcome and a glad smile. When Captain and Mrs. W. H. Fawcett were touring home from Florida they visited Florence, South Carolina, and the car was tagged with a yellow card that bore a cordial greeting and conveyed a wealth of information. It was given them by a smiling policeman.

The face said: "Welcome to Florence. This card entitles you to park your car as long as you please in Florence. Never mind the time limit. But do not park in safety zones, or near fire hydrants, or block alleys. Not good for city and county owned cars." It is signed by the mayor and chief of police.

The reverse side states that Florence is the fastest growing city in South Carolina with a population of 18,500. Advantages industrially and in an agricultural way are stated succinctly. Free maps and information may be gained at the Chamber of Commerce. Club meetings of the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis are recorded.

The card gives a wealth of information in small compass. The fact that the car parking time limit is extended for the tourists meets with a most favorable response and reception.

Isn't it possible for Brainerd to work out something in this line?

Mrs. Fawcett, who is from Beaufort, S. C., is quite proud to think of the ingenious way a town of her state welcomes the tourists.

DROPPING YOUR WORRIES AT NIGHT

DON'T take your business anxieties to bed with you, advises the Dawson Sentinel. When you lie down to rest let your business go.

The great apparent reason for this is the fact that you cannot be equipped for the day of business which follows a night of restless worry. System should also preclude all the affairs of your life that you will be able to dismiss from your mind any business problem in order to secure rest. Men frequently say that they have lost more than one night's sleep over some business problem. They must all admit that they were less able to combat with the affairs of the following day than they would have been had they received the succor of peaceful sleep. Carry system into every detail of your life and don't take your business anxieties to bed.

A COURAGEOUS SPIRIT DIES

IN the death of Thomas A. Dorgan, sport cartoonist, the world loses one of its most courageous spirits. Handicapped by illness, unable to move about except in a wheel chair, denied participation in the great outdoors, Dorgan nevertheless used his facile pencil and sketched his cartoons with all the verve and abandon of a man able to frequent the scenes he depicted.

Friends and the radio gave him pointers. Looking at his work, no one would ever know that for years he had suffered from a weakening heart malady, that his best drawings and writings were made when pain wracked his body.

Death came to him painlessly, for he died in his sleep.

GLARING LIGHTS IMPROPERLY ADJUSTED

TOURING and general travel are increasing and the night driver, as usual, is encountering any number of cars with glaring headlights improperly adjusted.

There are lamp adjusting stations in Brainerd which should be patronized and the headlights set at proper angle so they will not blind the driver of an approaching car.

The law should be enforced and everything done to make night driving safe.

A NEW trust company at Scarsdale, N. Y., offers a new plan to depositors, making check writing easy. The depositor sends his bills to the bank and the latter writes out the checks for him. Next thing in real convenience is for some one to cover balances when they get near the red line.

Two committee of the Chicago city council had a strenuous line of work the other day. They held public hearings and inspected samples of modern bathing suits worn by girls preparatory to drafting new regulations.

As car sales mount and car owners increase we must have more and better roads.

MAKING TOWN BEAUTIFUL

THE Princeton Union tells how Princeton is being made beautiful and conveys a lesson that may be absorbed with profit by other communities.

Many of the homes in this village are now undergoing the annual spring cleaning. Every closet is being scoured from top to bottom and every dresser drawer and shelf dusted. It sometimes seems as though the good housewives in this village are just a little too energetic in their pursuit of every speck of dust, but some other members of the family might well take an example from these women and divert a little similar energy on the grounds surrounding the house.

Princeton is a beautiful village, and its chief claim to beauty lies in its wonderful shade trees and its well kept lawns. One unsightly spot, however, will spoil a whole block. Now is the time of the year when every property owner should make a strenuous effort to clean up his back yard and his alleys. It is not much for one person to make presentable his yard, but the effect of having everyone do it makes a great difference in the appearance of the entire village.

And then after all rubbish and ash heaps have been cleared away, why not take an hour or two to sow a few flower seeds? Fifty cents worth of seeds will make any lawn beautiful. If a man owns his home, as do most of the residents in this village, it is a wise act to plant one or two perennial plants each year that will come up every spring to make the home beautiful.

Shrubs add so much to the appearance of any house, and the queen of all the shrubs in this section of Minnesota is the bridal wreath. It is a thing of beauty when in bloom and is graceful and attractive during the entire summer.

Princeton can be made one of the most beautiful villages in this state if every property owner will do his "bit."

HOW THEY MAKE YOU FEEL AT HOME IN SOUTH CAROLINA

THE South meets the tourist with a welcome and a glad smile. When Captain and Mrs. W. H. Fawcett were touring home from Florida they visited Florence, South Carolina, and the car was tagged with a yellow card that bore a cordial greeting and conveyed a wealth of information. It was given them by a smiling policeman.

The face said: "Welcome to Florence. This card entitles you to park your car as long as you please in Florence. Never mind the time limit. But do not park in safety zones, or near fire hydrants, or block alleys. (Not good for city and county owned cars.)" It is signed by the mayor and chief of police.

The reverse side states that Florence is the fastest growing city in South Carolina with a population of 18,500. Advantages industrially and in an agricultural way are stated succinctly. Free maps and information may be gained at the Chamber of Commerce. Club meetings of the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis are recorded.

The card gives a wealth of information in small compass. The fact that the car parking time limit is extended for the tourists meets with a most favorable response and reception.

Isn't it possible for Brainerd to work out something in this line?

Mrs. Fawcett, who is from Beaufort, S. C., is quite proud to think of the ingenious way a town of her state welcomes the tourists.

DROPPING YOUR WORRIES AT NIGHT

DON'T take your business anxieties to bed with you, advises the Dawson Sentinel. When you lie down to rest let your business also.

The great apparent reason for this is the fact that you cannot be equipped for the day of business which follows a night of restless worry. System should also pervade all the affairs of your life that you will be able to dismiss from your mind any business problem in order to secure rest. Men frequently say that they have lost more than one night's sleep over some business problem. They must admit that they were less able to combat with the affairs of the following day than they would have been had they received the succor of peaceful sleep. Carry system into every detail of your life and don't take your business anxieties to bed.

A COURAGEOUS SPIRIT DIES

IN the death of Thomas A. Dorgan, sport cartoonist, the world loses one of its most courageous spirits. Handicapped by illness, unable to move about except in a wheel chair, denied participation in the great outdoors, Dorgan nevertheless used his facile pencil and sketched his cartoons with all the verve and abandon of a man able to frequent the scenes he depicted.

Friends and the radio gave him pointers. Looking at his work, no one would ever know that for years he had suffered from a weakening heart malady, that his best drawings and writings were made when pain wracked his body.

Death came to him painlessly, for he died in his sleep.

GLARING LIGHTS IMPROPERLY ADJUSTED

TOURING and general travel are increasing and the night driver, as usual, is encountering any number of cars with glaring headlights improperly adjusted.

There are lamp adjusting stations in Brainerd which should be patronized and the headlights set at proper angle so they will not blind the driver of an approaching car.

The law should be enforced and everything done to make night driving safe.

A NEW trust company at Scarsdale, N. Y., offers a new plan to depositors, making check writing easy. The depositor sends his bills to the bank and the latter writes out the checks for him. Next thing in real convenience is for some one to cover balances when they get near the red line.

Two committee of the Chicago city council had a strenuous line of work the other day. They held public hearings and inspected samples of modern bathing suits worn by girls preparatory to drafting new regulations.

As car sales mount and car owners increase we must have more and better roads.

The Atlas Mills of this city changed ownership today. The deal has been pending for some time. Geo. Dielmann of the city and Joseph Craig of Princeton, have sold their interest to a gentleman by the name of D. Oliver of St. Paul. The consideration is said to have been $15,000.

Fix Up that CELLAR ENTRANCE

The entrance to the cellar is likely to be neglected. Ricketty stairway, down which a careless step will send you hurtling—cracked walls, and unsightly trash. True pride in the home will not permit these "ugly spots" to remain, even though they may be hidden from sight. EVERY part of the house should be in ship-shape order.

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE PREPARES FOR COMING SEASON

3 TEAMS ARE SIGNED UP FOR ORGANIZATION

MAYOR FRANK E. LITTLE TO BE ASKED TO PITCH THE FIRST BALL

Y. M. C. A. AND SOUTHSIDERS TO PLAY THE OPENING GAME

Last night's meeting of the officials of the Brainerd City Baseball League saw marked progress made in the plans for some first class baseball for the 1929 season. All the well known baseball players of the city are lined up on one of the three teams in the league. A drawing was made at last night's meeting to see which two teams would start the season with the opener, the Y. M. C. A. and the Southside teams being the ones drawn.

Mayor Frank E. Little will be asked to pitch the first ball and as plans now stand, the opener will be played on a new diamond to be laid out at the aviation field by the Rosko brothers. The exact date of the first game to be announced next week, however plans are to have the game the week of the 13th of May.

All details of the league have been threshed out with the weekly meetings held by the officials and the one big remaining problem is that of grounds. However the texture of the soil at the aviation field gives promise of the best possibility of a first class diamond around this country. The soil has neither too much sand or too much clay and it gives promise of being an all weather field, when storms have put the municipal field out of playing use. The aviation field is one mile from the business district of Brainerd and it is believed that fans would gladly drive that distance to see snappy ball game on a good diamond.

The matter of umpires being an important one for good ball games, a list of names were presented for umpires last night and approved. Action was also taken to have games governed by rules of the National Commission.

Here are the baseball rosters: Southside—W. Schwendeman, H. Bernard, B. Andrews, W. Peterson, W. Hautala, B. Fitzharris, L. Hansen, R. Uddenberg, A. Loom, R. Aro, C. Bedal, C. Erickson, M. Nutting, L. Rofidal.

Y. M. C. A.—L. Peterson, H. Ringer, L. Swanson, K. Whitlock, L. Lepinski, W. Anderson, J. Fitzharris, N. Ziebell, H. Carlson, D. Imgrund, C. Larson, H. Olson, D. Soderlund, (Shorty) Long, S. Sheffo, John Gablon, J. Houghton.

Sets Frish Record

Albert J. "Albie" Booth, Jr., of New Haven, Conn., since his entry into Yale last fall has been captain in football and basketball and is now elected captain of the freshman baseball team. We'll say that's stepping some for a young fellow; at any rate, it is a record which has yet to be matched. (International Newsreel)

ALDERMAN-MAGHAN DOWNS NASH-FINCH BY COUNT OF 7 TO 3

GLEASON, PITCHER FOR LOSERS HELD DOWN HITS BUT ISSUED FOUR FREE TICKETS

NAIL DRIVERS TAKE LEAD IN FIRS BY SCORING TWO RUNS WITHOUT A HIT

The Alderman-Maghan Nail Drivers defeated the Nash-Finch Co. diamondball team last evening by a score of 7 to 3. The wether was more suitable for a football game than a kittenball encounter and neither team was able to play their best.

Gleason, pitcher for the losers, allowed the Nail Drivers three hits, one of them a home run by Orth, but he issued four free tickets and errors by his team mates figured in most of the Alderman-Maghan scoring. He struck out eleven Nail Drivers.

Waldman, pitched for the winners and was steady throughout the game. He allowed nine scattered hits, only three of them going for extra bases, one of which was a home run by Gleason.

Nash-Finch scored their first counter in the second inning when Olson walked and scored on Barrett's three-bagger. They added another run to their total in the fifth when Gleason hit a home run. They tallied their final run in the first half of the seventh when Gleason stroked, Buscher singled, Gleason going to third, Fish doubled scoring Gleason and Buscher stopped at third. Elling reached first on an error filling the bases but Olson ended the rally by grounding to Orth who threw him out at first.

The Nail Drivers scored two runs in the first inning without hit. De-Rocher drew a pass nad Orth was sfe on an error. Hagberg advanced both players with a sacrifice and they scored when Fitzharris muffed Hanson's grounder. They added two more runs in the third, when Waldman reached first on an error and De-Rocher got another base on blls. Hgberg then cleaned the paths with a triple. The Nail Drivers tallied twice in hte fifth when Orth hit a home run with one on. Their final marker came in the sixth on a pass, an error and a sacrifice hit.

SMOOTH WATER, CLEAR SKIES FOR BOAT RACES

Derby, Conn., May 4.—(U.P.)—Smooth water and clear skies awaited the crews of Yale, Pennsylvania, and Columbia who were to race over the Housatonic river course late today in their annual triangular regatta.

Experts predicted Ed Leader's husky Yale varsity would have the hardest battle since the University of Washington oarsmen came to New Haven. Columbia, by reason of its victory over the Navy, was even money to defeat the Elis.

Four races will be run this afternoon, beginning at 5:50 p. m.

Woman Entry into Field Held Inviolable by Racers

Ask Rules Be Set Aside Permitting Woman in Racing Pits

WOMEN are wonderful, but when they seek to invade forbidden territory—that's something different, or, at least, that is what directors of the Indianapolis Speedway contend. Speedway authorities heretofore have fairly glowed as women have poured through the turnpikes, but the mention of women today makes them shudder.

And all because a woman, Alice Hoffman-Trobek, American born adopted daughter of France, seeks to "crash" the pit and paddock section of the Speedway as director of Louis Chiron's attempt on May 30 to wrest the speed crown from Yankee drivers.

Alice Hoffman-Trobek was born in Hartford, Conn., but at the age of two years went to France with her parents. She is delightfully effeminate in private life (and that's where the shoe binds with the Speedway officials), but a rabid racing fan and extremely business-like while directing a driver's race from the pits.

The Chiron organization sets up that Alice is as essential to Chiron's success as he is himself. She has kept all of his racing data, that she is a veteran in the pits and is calm in the most nerve-racking race situation. They point to the exception made for her by German racing executives; to that fatal day at Monza track in Turin, Italy, when 31 persons were killed, and when the track authorities were forced to rely on her records because she was the lone person to perform her duties in the midst of the sensational catastrophe.

"Rules are rules," said the Speedway officials, "but we'll take her case under advisement."

SMALLEST CROWD OF SEASON SEES FIGHT LAST NIGHT

JONES PUNCHES FORMER OLYMPIC BOXER FULL OF HOLES

MELLO FOUND TO POSSESS LITTLE IN WAY OF CHAMPIONSHIP QUALITIES

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 4.—The decline of the welterweight division championed by reluctant little Joe Dundee of Baltimore, never was more strikingly demonstrated than in Madison Square Garden last night, when the smallest crowd of the local indoor season saw Al Mello of Lowell, Mass., 151 1-2, who twice recently defeated the title holder, soundly beaten by Gorilla Jones of Akron, Ohio, 154.

Jones, a sprightly negro, danced rings around Mello and punched the former Olympic boxer full of holes, dropping him twice for the count of nine. Mello kept coming in and trying but the Akron boxer knew far too much boxing for the short armed southpaw from New England.

If Dundee had not been beaten a number of times by other boxers it would be difficult to explain how a man who twice could conquer the welterweight champion could prove such an easy mark for a light hitter like Gorilla Jones.

Impressed by reports of Mello's two victories over the titleholder, the boxing authorities had planned to authorize a championship match between the Lowell welterweight and Jackie Fields, 147-pounder from the Pacific coast.

Last night's affair demonstrated that Mello's victories over Dundee were due to the latter's inferiority rather than to any championship qualities possessed by the New Englander.

Yesterday's Hero—George Uhle, Detroit pitcher, who held the Chicago White Sox to five hits and snapped a four game winning streak, at Chicago, 6 to 1.

The game was the only regularly scheduled contest in either league, rain, wet grounds and cold weather forcing the cancellation of all others.

The White Sox took a one run lead in the first inning and Detroit tied the count in the second. The winning run came in the sixth, followed by another in the seventh. In the ninth, with one man on base, Gehring hit a home run, the 101st of the 1929 major league season.

Although crowning on championship competition generally, the weather man permitted the New York Yankees to lose an exhibition at Pittsburgh by an 8 to 2 count. Gordon Rhodes started for the Yanks and allowed Pittsburgh six runs before he was replaced by Johnson in the fifth. Meadows and Fusse held the Yankees to eight hits.

Crossin' the Everglades

By QUIN HALL

THE average tourist has become so accustomed to slowing up for small towns while doing his regular motoring exercises that it may be a difficult task to convince him that there are still places in the country where one can drive for a hundred miles without even finding a wide place in the road. Yet there are places just like that, and in a State—Florida—where there is an over-supply of motorists, especially in the winter months.

Following the Sharkey-Stirling Battle of the Palms at Miami, your correspondent thought it would be a good idea to romp over to St. Petersburg, where most of the ball teams training in Florida are to be seen playing exhibition games during the Spring. St. Pete is the Spring training grounds of both the New York Yankees and the Boston Braves. The tourists do their share toward supporting the national pastime, and so most of the teams training in the neighborhood trek in to collect their share of the gate receipts.

Running west from Miami there is a highway known as the Tamiami Trail. The buses which chug their way over this road advertise it as a trip through the Everglades.

We left Miami with the thought that we would spend most of the day in the jungles with alligators, the coming out occasionally to snap at the tires and with plenty of opportunity to study the Seminole Indians in their native State.

Unfortunately the trip was rather a disappointment from an adventurous standpoint. For almost a hundred miles we traveled over a flat stretch of country. In that distance we failed to pass through anything which could be referred to even as a hamlet and the shacks, which served as gas stations, were much too far apart to be of any use to the fellow who neglects watching his gas gauge. Little groups of palm trees huddling together did their best to jazz up the monotony of the flat landscape; but at no time did we come even close to the jungles, which are usually associated with the Everglades. And we failed to sight so much as one alligator—biting at the tires or otherwise.

We did, however, see a lot of fishermen trying their luck in the canal which runs alongside of the road for almost all of the hundred miles. This canal was formed by the removal of the dirt, which was used for building up the roadbed, and it teems with fish of all sizes and many varieties. Foreign licensed cars all carried fishing poles on the running boards. When the flat scenery became too monotonous, the motorists stopped and went in for some serious angling.

We saw many flocks of white heron—that bird is becoming extinct, they say—and buzzards, the scavengers of the Everglades, as elsewhere, were prominently at work circling high in the heavens throughout the trip.

The Tamiami Trail was completed about a year ago and, in blazing the route, it was necessary to employ Seminole Indians, the regular residents of the Everglades. But for the cooperation of the Seminoles, the path might never have been made.

The Seminoles are the real pioneers of Florida. They are, by the way, still technically, at war with the United States. They are the only tribe who have not signed a treaty with the folks at Washington and, in view of this fact, the United States has no authority over them. They still make their own laws and hold their own courts. They can fish or hunt either in or out of season and, as game animals are both plentiful in the jungle part of the Everglades, they live a rather lazy and care-free life.

But the Seminoles, the alligators, the snakes hanging from the trees, and the real jungles of the Everglades are not to be sighted in profusion from the Tamiami Trail. Altogether, the trip is rather uninteresting, and that may be the reason why all trains running between Miami and St. Pete are operated at night. They tried to run them during the daytime, but so many of the customers went cuckoo trying to find something interesting to look at out of the windows that they gave it up. Now they snore their way over, and let it go at that.

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE PREPARES FOR COMING SEASON

3 TEAMS ARE SIGNED UP FOR ORGANIZATION

MAYOR FRANK E. LITTLE TO BE ASKED TO PITCH THE FIRST BALL

Y. M. C. A. AND SOUTHSIDERS TO PLAY THE OPENING GAME

Last night's meeting of the officials of the Brainerd City Baseball League saw marked progress made in the plans for some first class baseball for the 1929 season. All the well-known baseball players of the city are lined up on one of the three teams in the league. A drawing was made at last night's meeting to see which two teams would start the season with the opener, the Y. M. C. A. and the Southside teams being the ones drawn.

Mayor Frank E. Little will be asked to pitch the first ball and as plans now stand, the opener will be played on a new diamond to be laid out at the aviation field by the Rosko brothers. The exact date of the first game to be announced next week, however plans are to have the game the week of the 13th of May.

All details of the league have been threshed out with the weekly meetings held by the officials and the one big remaining problem is that of grounds. However the texture of the soil at the aviation field gives promise of the best possibility of a first class diamond around this country. The soil has neither too much sand or too much clay and it gives promise of being an all weather field, when storms have put the municipal field out of playing use. The aviation field is one mile from the business district of Brainerd and it is believed that fans would gladly drive that distance to see snappy ball game on a good diamond.

The matter of umpires being an important one for good ball games, a list of names were presented for umpires last night and approved. Action was also taken to have games governed by rules of the National Commission.

Here are the baseball rosters: Southside—W. Schwendeman, H. Bernard, B. Andrews, W. Peterson, W. Hautala, B. Fitzharris, L. Hansen, R. Uddenberg, A. Loom, R. Aro, C. Bedal, C. Erickson, M. Nutting, L. Rofidal.

Y. M. C. A.—L. Peterson, H. Ringer, L. Swanson, K. Whitlock, L. Lepinski, W. Anderson, J. Fitzharris, N. Ziebell, H. Carlson, L. Ingund, C. Larson, H. Olson, D. Soderlund, (Shorty) Long, S. Sheffield, John Gabiou, J. Houghton.

Sets Frash Record

Albert J. "Albie" Booth, Jr., of New Haven, Conn., since his entry into Yale last fall has been captain in football and basketball and is now elected captain of the freshman baseball team. We'll say that's stepping some for a young feller; at any rate, it is a record which has yet to be matched. (International Newsroom)

In that distance we failed to pass through anything which could be referred to even as a hamlet and the shacks, which served as gas stations, were much too far apart to be of any use to the fellow who neglects watching his gas gauge.

Little groups of palm trees huddling together did their best to jazz up the monotony of the flat landscape; but at no time did we come even close to the jungles which are usually associated with the Everglades. And we failed to sight so much as one alligator—biting at the tires or otherwise.

We did, however, see a lot of fishermen trying their luck in the canal which runs alongside of the road for almost all of the hundred miles. This canal was formed by the removal of the dirt which was used for building up the roadbed, and it teems with fish of all sizes and many varieties. Foreign licensed cars all carried fishing poles on the running boards. When the flat scenery became too monotonous, the motorists stopped and went in for some serious angling.

We saw many flocks of white heron—that bird is becoming extinct, they say—and buzzards, scavengers of the Everglades, as elsewhere, were prominently at work circling high in the heavens throughout the trip.

The Tamiami Trail was completed about a year ago and, in blazing the route, it was necessary to employ Seminole Indians, the regular residents of the Everglades. But for the cooperation of the Seminoles, the path might never have been made.

The Seminoles are the real pioneers of Florida. They are, by way, still technically, at war with the United States. They are the only tribe who have not signed a treaty with the folks at Washington and, in view of this fact, the United States has no authority over them. They still make their own laws and hold their own courts. They can fish or hunt either in or out of season and, as game as fish are both plentiful in the jungle part of the Everglades, they live a rather lazy and care-free life.

But the Seminoles, the alligators, the snakes hanging from the trees, and the real jungles of the Everglades are not to be sighted in profusion from the Tamiami Trail. Altogether, the trip is rather uninteresting and that may be the reason why all trains running between Miami and St. Pete are operated at night. They tried to run them during the daytime, but so many of the customers went cuckoo trying to find something interesting to look at out of the windows that they gave it up. Now they snore their way over, and let it go at that.

INSANE WAR VET CLAIMED BY TWO

Each "Widow" Insists Italian Soldier Is Her Missing Spouse.

Rome.—Solomon, with all his wisdom, never had a more difficult problem to solve than a case involving the identity of a man who lost his memory, and whom two "widows" claim as their own legitimate husband, which for more than two years has been argued back and forth in various Italian courts.

One of the women, Signora Canella, a well-to-do person living in luxury and comfort in the Palazzo at Verona, contends that a former inmate of the Collegno lunatic asylum, suffering from a total loss of memory and therefore unable to give an account of his identity, is Prof. Giulio Canella, formerly professor of law at the Lyceum of Verona, who was reported lost during the war.

The other, Signora Bruneri, asserts with equal forcefulness that "Smemorato di Collegno," or the man of Collegno without a memory, as he is called, is her husband, Mario Bruneri, who deserted his home in Turin at the end of the war and is a former convict, wanted by the police, who managed to escape after serving part of a sentence for stabbing a man with a pocketknife.

Science on One Side.

Signora Bruneri has science on her side, as the finger prints of the convict Bruneri tally exactly with those of "Smemorato di Collegno," but Signora Canella in her fight for the man whom she believes to be her husband has even challenged Bertillon's famous finger print theory, bringing forward much evidence to show that the man without a memory is indeed Prof. Giulio Canella.

Every one in Verona, from the bishop and the member of parliament down, is ready to swear that Signora Canella is right. Signora Canella, besides, has sentiment on her side. Smemorato had been living at her home for more than two years, yet she still insists he is her husband.

It is impossible, it is argued, for even the cleverest impersonator in the world to assume another man's identity so successfully as to deceive his wife in the intimacy of everyday life. Besides, it seems monstrous to tear this man with two identities from the bosom of a family which loves him, only to cast him into jail to serve a sentence for a crime committed ten years ago. Yet, even at the risk of seeing him exchange a comfortable home for a prison cell, Signora Bruneri is not willing to relinquish her claims over the poor wreck of a man for whom another "widow" is fighting strenuously.

Issue Splits Italy.

For two years now Italy has been divided into two camps, the Bruneristi and Canellani, supporting the claims of the Signora Bruneri and Signora Canella, respectively, with the greatest heat. No controversial subject has caused more discussion.

The story begins in 1912, when Giulio Canella, daughter of a wealthy Italian who made a fortune in America, returned to the home of her father in Verona. There she met and fell in love with her cousin, Giulio Canella, professor of law at the local lyceum, and eventually married him. They lived happily until the war, when Canella received a commission in the army and fought at the front and finally was reported missing. In due course of time he was declared officially dead and the "widow" received a pension.

Things remained at this point when one day Signora Canella saw in a newspaper over the caption "Who Knows This Man?" what she thought a photograph of her husband. A note explained that the photograph represented an inmate of the Collegno lunatic asylum suffering a complete loss of memory, whose identity the authorities were trying to establish.

Signora Canella hurried to Collegno, where she identified the man without a memory as her husband. The "Smemorato" at the same time recovered his memory sufficiently to recognize her as his wife and fell into her arms with many tears. Signora Canella ultimately succeeded in convincing the authorities that he was indeed her husband and bore him off in triumph to Verona.

Another Claims Man.

Soon afterward Signora Bruneri appeared on the scene. She also claimed the "Smemorato" as her husband. With the help of the police she was able to show that the fingerprints of the former inmate of the lunatic asylum corresponded exactly with those of Mario Bruneri, convicted of stabbing another man and who escaped from jail eight years before.

The police would have immediately rearrested Signora Canella's supposedly long lost husband, but the whole Canella family, and, indeed, the whole population of Verona, rallied to his aid. Lawyers were obtained and dozens of witnesses whose good faith was above question testified that there was no doubt that the "Smemorato" was Professor Canella. Finally the matter was brought before the courts at Turin, which were asked to determine the "Smemorato's" identity.

The trial went against the Canella interests, the court deciding that the "Smemorato" and Mario Bruneri were one and the same person. The court ordered the man without a memory to be surrendered to the proper authorities, while at the same time additional charges were brought against him for impersonating Professor Canella. Canella's lawyers, however, appealed the sentence. Meanwhile the "Smemorato" is a free man and continues to live with Signora Canella pending a new trial before the Court of Cassation.

Daughter Is Born.

A new complication arose on November 22 of last year, when Signora Canella gave birth to a daughter. She has been named Elisa Francesca Maria Canella. The registrar of births, however, refused to register the child other than as "illegitimate daughter of the widow Canella," basing his decision on the sentence of the Turin court. An appeal from his decision being made, it was decided that this question also would be held in abeyance pending an appeal before the Court of Cassation. The religious authorities had no objection to baptizing the child as the "illegitimate daughter of the widow Canella."

The Court of Cassation must now attack this complicated drama again. Its sentence will turn a husband to the arms of one wife, declaring the husband of the other officially dead. It will either authorize the "Smemorato" to continue to enjoy his present well-to-do position until his dying day or make him change his palatial residence for a prison cell.

Workers Take Field to Study Malta Fever

Washington.—Shifting its attack against undulant fever from the laboratory to field study, the United States public health service has stationed Dr. H. E. Hasseltine here in its war against the disease.

Doctor Hasseltine will visit cases as soon as they are reported, in an attempt to trace the source of infection and to find other data for a comprehensive study of the means of the spread of the disease.

The Middle West has the greatest number of reported cases. Of the 161 cases reported last year, Iowa had 44, and Kansas and Minnesota each had 13. There were 11 in California, 9 in Oregon, 10 in New York and 8 in Maryland.

Undulant fever, known as Malta fever for years, has only recently come into prominence as a public health problem in several states. Four public health service workers have been disabled in the war against the disease.

4 Months' Hunt Ends in Killing of Wolf

Phoenix, Ariz.—Four months' pursuit of a ten-year-old wolf whose depredations were international in scope has been rewarded by his death. The predatory creature included in his range southeastern Arizona, New Mexico and Mexico. He was credited with having slain thousands of dollars worth of stock.

Last September, M. E. Musgrave, director of the government's fight against destructive animals, dispatched Deputy Al Fields into the district with instructions to stay there until the wolf was killed. After a wait of four months the wolf returned to Arizona and was trapped.

War Vet Asks Help to Prove He Is Alive

Santa Rosa, Calif.—Thomas R. Smith of this city, reported "killed in action" during the World war, is very much alive and has appealed to the American Legion in an effort to have himself declared so.

For ten years the government has been insisting that Smith's sister accept $10,000 in war risk insurance for her brother's "death."

Mrs. Johnson and her brother both steadfastly refuse to admit he is "dead," and now Smith has asked the American Legion to aid in straightening out the records at Washington.

Mail Pilot Circles Town to Spread Fire Alarm

Shenandoah, Pa.—An air mail pilot flying from Cleveland to New York aroused firemen at Ringtown, six miles north of this city, by circling low over the village when he saw the Dew Drop Inn afire.

Six times he circled the village before firemen were aroused and started for the fire, which had gained considerable headway. Seeing that he had spread an alarm the airman continued his flight. The inn, a three-story frame structure, was destroyed.

Car Sold for Enough to Free Its Owner

Albany, N. Y.—It isn't often that the cause of the trouble is the means of salvation, but when Arthur Nett, seventeen, of this city, was arraigned in court charged with four traffic law violations, the ancient vehicle he drove saved him from a possible 55-day jail term.

Nett was stopped for passing red lights. The officer found that Nett had no operator's license, falsified his age to get license plates and that the car itself had ineffective brakes. Fines on the several violations totaled $55, or 55 days. Nett phoned a junk dealer, sold the car for that amount and walked home.

Hard Work During School Killed Interest in Anything but Work

"MY YOUTH, of course, may be a handicap to me in my new job, the biggest I've ever tackled, but nothing can be done about it." Thus Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of Chicago University at age 30, treats the question of his age.

For all of his youthful appearance, there is little of the boy about Hutchins. The struggle of his college years and responsibilities beyond his age have killed any "play spirit" he might have had.

Hutchins has a certain humor. He had been called to Washington with Professor Charles E. Clark, of the Law School, to tell President Hoover about his four-year inquiry into the American judicial system now being conducted by the school. He encountered a Justice during his visit.

"So this is the boy 'dean' of Yale," said the Justice. "I suppose you still teach your students that all judges are crazy."

"No," Hutchins replied quietly. "We let them find that out for themselves."

Robert Maynard Hutchins, tall, slight, boyish-faced man, who was secretary of the Yale Corp. at 22, dean of Yale Law School at 28 and now is to be president of the University of Chicago at 30, asserts luck has been the chief factor in his unprecedented educational career.

He professes not to know why the Yale Corp chose him as secretary before he was graduated from college. He says he can't account for his appointment as dean of Yale Law School soon after his graduation from the school. His appointment as president of the University of Chicago "stunned" him, he says.

Dean Hutchins has no hobbies. His only love is his family—he has a wife and baby daughter. His work is "just a habit," Hutchins says.

"I waited on table, washed dishes, worked in a factory and organized a co-operative tutoring school," he said. "But I wouldn't advise a student to work as hard as I did. It burns up his energy."

If Hutchins has advocated any particular educational theory, it is universally in training for law.

He believes a good lawyer should understand something of psychology, sociology and medicine, and he introduced this theory into practice.

Flowers to Rule in Spring Styles

Frocks, Coats and Millinery Are Embellished With Gay Clusters.

All the poetry and beauty of spring are reflected in the styles as they are presented in the fashion revues and private collections. In every phase of dress the keynote is flowers, with which designers are expressing that feminine quality which is now so strongly emphasized, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. The hope of the fashion directors of Paris to restore the flower and needlework industries seems suddenly to be realized in this year's spring styles. Gowns, coats and millinery are blossoming with flowers used in ways that are both quaint and unique, and needlework of many kinds is introduced to embellish dress for daytime and evening. Evening gowns are trimmed with graceful garnitures of French flowers, ensembles for afternoon are embellished with sprays and clusters of blossoms that repeat the fabric colors, and a boutonniere is fastened on every sports suit and coat. Even the rainy-day outfit is touched up with a rubber flower, and some sort of nosegay is pinned on the coat of the latest pajamas.

It is in evening dress that the flower motif is most charmingly illustrated, and in all of the spring collections are shown delightful gowns for evening that are simply "dripping" with flowers. Parisian and American designers are trimming their evening gowns extravagantly with flowers, using them in garlands and festoons, literally by the yard, or devising entirely new arrangements in which single flowers are placed to point up and give distinction to a costume. Some of these models are refreshingly original. One is a gown of pale-blue chiffon made with the goods caught up and held about the hips by a garland of large chiffon flowers in soft shades of peach and rose, with which the drapery is lifted in front. This has a festive, semi-barbaric look that is most decorative. On another gown of pale green chiffon, very slim and supple, large magnolia blossoms are fastened singly to catch up the drapery, beginning on one hip and making great beauty spots at even spaces downward and partly across the front. In each of these gowns the flowers are placed only on the skirts of the dress, the bodice being plain.

Flowers on Sheer Material.

Flowers are used most pictorially on evening gowns of sheer stuffs—tulle, chiffon, nylon, marquisette, will-o-the-wisp—a new, illusively lovely chiffon. Tulle and artificial flowers were long ago "married," as the French say, illustrated in countless binations has ever been as happy in effect as that of flowers in all of the natural tones against a background of tulle in plain colors.

In these some of the conventional creations hold their own in favor among the later styles, and two dance frocks of quaint loveliness have just been imported from the Paris studio of Magdaleine des Hayes. One of white tulle, made with many skirts one over the other, gathering wide, with downward dip at the back, has a plain softly fitted decollete bodice of white satin. At one side of the waist is fastened a long spray of flowers, a full-blown pink rose at the top, with forget-me-nots, rosebuds, a bit of purple, scarlet and light green interspersed, with here and there a few snowdrops. Around the white satin petticoat a silver ribbon is caught above the hemline, gleaming faintly through the misty flounces.

fairy-like creations. Each season brings different variants of the same combination—clouds of frosty tulle, in layers, deep-flounced or in many crisp frills, ornamented with trailing garnitures, delicate sprays or tiny nosegays. There is no limit to the variety of floral elaboration, though no com-

Irregular Fighters
"Foreign Legion" is often used for irregular volunteer corps of foreign sympathizers raised by states at war, often by smaller states fighting for independence. The term "Foreign Legion" is colloquially but incorrectly applied today to the Regimental Etrangers in the French service, which are composed of adventurous spirits of all nations, and which have been employed in many arduous colonial campaigns.

Irregular Fighters
"Foreign Legion" is often used for irregular volunteer corps of foreign sympathizers raised by states at war, often by smaller states fighting for independence. The term "Foreign Legion" is colloquially but incorrectly applied today to the Regimental Etrangers in the French service, which are composed of adventurous spirits of all nations, and which have been employed in many arduous colonial campaigns.

When you spend your money for the seven and seventy things that are always popping out of nowhere to demand a portion of your income, you want to be certain they are returning the utmost in value for your every dollar.

But how can you know the worth of the products you buy? Can you test them scientifically?

Can you make microscopic examinations for flaws and imperfections? Chemical analyses for purity and composition? Physical machine-tests for stress and strain, strength and durability? Have you laboratories equipped for this work? Can you afford the scientists and research workers to perform it?

There is a less expensive way to safeguard your purchases. A better way to buy.

Buy products that have been tested by others! Products that have passed the most ruthless and rigid of all tests . . . that of actual use! Nationally known, nationally liked, nationally used products! Advertised products!

Here, in the advertisements, are products of sound worth brought to your attention. Products manufactured to standards of certain quality, that have been tried and tested by the most exacting persons . . . people who have bought them, and used them over and over again. Products worth your money.

MAY FETE GIVEN IN COLORFUL FASHION

Harrison School Grounds Crowded to Witness Parade of May Queen

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES

May Pole Dance, Agile Tumbler and Gay Singers Make Occasion a Gay One

The Harrison school grounds were crowded with spectators Wednesday when the Old Fashioned Bouquet Bluebird group presented their May fete.

Apple blossoms waved gaily in the breeze as the attendants of the May Queen Neome Newman, came tripping forth. Then the queen with her soft white veil advanced over a flower strewn path to her throne.

Gerhardt Olson as herald with a plume waving from his tam-o-shanter announced the numbers from a scroll.

Those who performed for the May Queen all did well and showed that they had been working hard.

A May pole dance, an agile tumbler, gay singers and a group of wee folk who looked as though they might have been transported from across the seas in their quaint old world costume and their merry folk dance, and a very young pianist—these were a few of the outstanding features of the program.

One could not help wishing for more warmth and sunshine but despite the cold the hope was expressed that this become an annual affair.

A SIX IN THE PRICE RANGE OF THE FOUR

Daphne

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

DAPHNE HAINES, seventeen and lovely, finds life intolerable because of a nagging, jealous stepmother whose main aim is to promote a courtship between her own daughter, Crystal, and wealthy, attractive Ralph McKevitt. Catching a fleeting glimpse of Daphne, the "prize" young man admires her. Mrs. Haines, fearing the rivalry of the younger girl, schemes to eliminate her from the scene. Daphne dismays when she realizes how completely these two calculating women have her father in their power, comforts herself by spinning secret dreams of a day when someone will really love her—a man, big, powerful, handsome, like Ralph! A wordy quarrel is provoked between Haines and his wife because of the woman's reckless expenditures. Subtly Mrs. Haines draws Daphne into the brawl. Feeling the hopelessness of her situation, Daphne determines to make her own way in the world, and leaves for San Francisco. With twenty dollars capital she seeks employment and learns it is hard to find. Daphne has an unpleasant experience with a prospective employer and in her haste to get away from him, leaves a purse containing her last five dollars in his office. The wolf seems perilously close. Hunger seizes her and she walks the streets wondering what she can buy to eat with a nickel. She decides upon a cup of coffee. At the Java Inn, a cheap restaurant, a young man sensing Daphne's plight, buys her a plate of ham and eggs. His face seems vaguely familiar. On the way home in his car she discovers that her escort is none other than Ralph McKevitt, her stepfather's "prize" young man. Now life seems warm and rosy!

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XII.

THE strong smell of boiling coffee penetrated Daphne's consciousness. It was morning; old Mrs. Hinckle in the kitchen was preparing her favorite brew. Daphne knew that the old lady slept in the kitchen, on the hard, lumpy couch between the stove and the table. "Aber, sometimes I say down here. I guess it's good enough for me," she would mumble in her hoarse, guttural old voice if any of the roomers found her there. But they all knew that the other rooms were always rented.

Miss Viola, her daughter, the "Madame Hinckle" of the dress-making sign in the window, slept on the green plush couch in the parlor, and Daphne herself had what had once been the dining room, separated from Miss Viola's parlor by perpetually locked and closed folding doors of dark, varnished wood.

Mrs. Hinckle made coffee twice a day, before breakfast, and before dinner, in a tall blue agate pot with a tin cover. The rest of the day it simmered on the back of the stove, sending out its stale, acid odor to mingle with the dampness of the halls, the old, musty smell of unaired beds, yellow soap, boiled dinner and the sweet-sour messes that usually shared the place of honor on the back of the stove.

"With the privilege of the kitchen," Miss Viola said when Daphne had rented the room, but Daphne had never made use of the privilege. It was bad enough to hurry through it in the mornings on her way to the splashy, dark little bathroom which an absent-minded architect had apparently forgotten until the house was finished, and then nonchalantly placed a vacant spot on the back porch.

There was always someone in the kitchen. Sometimes it was one of the married women from upstairs, stirring something over the fire or "washing out a little something" in one of the laundry tubs on the back porch. Or Flora McCordie, the tall, blond girl, who had the hall bedroom upstairs and was also out of work. Flora had been disposed to be friendly, but her loud, coarse laugh and her easy ways with the married women's husbands had frightened Daphne away.

Old Mrs. Hinckle had been friendly, too, looking up from her place at the oilcloth covered table to say: "There's coffee on the stove"—she pronounced it "stove"—"help yourself Miss Haines, make yourself at home; ah, they all do."

And Daphne had wanted to accept, and wanted to give friendliness for friendliness they gave her, but a tight, hard shyness held her back.

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it!" Flora's shrug seemed to say, and after a while Mrs. Hinckle didn't offer her coffee. "Some don't like it aber it's good enough for me," she'd mumble, looking after Daphne with eyes hard and black as shoelaces in her wrinkled old face as Daphne hurried by.

But this particular morning, the morning after she met Ralph McKevitt, everything was different. The sun was shining, chasing away the fog. A fresh, clean breeze blew through the open window, sweetening the stale air. Her own face, thin and pale as ever, looked different to her as she ran a comb through her hair and smiled to herself, thinking of Ralph. The worries had all slipped away.

"Good morning!" she called to Mrs. Hinckle. Her feet were almost skipping on the sticky kitchen floor. The smile that she gave the old lady embraced Flora, too. "She's got a job," Flora said when Daphne and her toothbrush had vanished behind the bathroom door.

The old lady nodded, dipping bread into her coffee, softening it for her toothless gums, and waited, sharp old eyes on the door. Flora waited, too, wrapping her faded Japanese kimono tighter about her thin body, dangling a slippered foot impatiently.

"I said I got a job!" she repeated.

"Well, what's the good word?" she shouted when Daphne came back glowing and a little shivery from her cold shower. "Hot and cold water," Miss Viola always explained to the roomers, but only the cold would run.

"Oh—nothing," Daphne said, still smiling, still filled with inner warmth and happiness.

"Get a job yet?"

"N-no—"

Instantly Flora was all sympathy. "Well, can you beat that? You and no both!" But she threw her head back, and laughed her big, hearty laugh, showing even white teeth. "Something'll turn up. I've got a boy friend counting for me, and I think I'll get one as social secretary for an old dame out in San Mateo if he can't get me on one of the papers. I used to write society on a morning paper up in Portland, but it looks like somebody'll have to die before I get a chance here."

"Somebody's looking out for me, too!" Daphne hadn't meant to say that, it just slipped out.

"Oh!" Flora looked at Daphne with new interest.

"I just met him last night. I was feeling so blue and down and out and thinking I never would find anything, and now I'll bet I got something today. Doesn't it make you feel different to find a friend?"

Flora interrupted her with a nudge, and Daphne realized that the old lady was speaking. "I always got plenty of coffee. Some don't like it aber it's there on the back of the stove—"

"You ought to try it, it's fine!" Flora put in good naturedly.

"Oh—I'd love to!" Daphne murmured, with another beaming smile.

"Take a chair," Mrs. Hinckle grumbled; "don't stand up. You got plenty of time to drink it sitting down."

And there they were, Daphne and Flora McCordie and old Mrs. Hinckle, all sipping coffee at the kitchen table, old friends.

Daphne's voice ran along happily telling all about the blue, lonely days, about the employment secretaries that thought she looked too young, and Mr. Gartz, and the coffee house near the ferry, and Ralph McKevitt, who was an old family friend and bobbed up in the nick of time.

"Well, for heaven's sake!" Flora encouraged. "Can you beat that?"

She believed it all, except the part about the "family friend."

"Heavens, what does she take us for, rubes?"

But Daphne didn't know what Flora was thinking. She told it all out of her full heart, and only stopped talking when the kitchen clock struck eight and it was time to begin the search for work.

She rode downtown with Flora and paid Flora's carfare out of the ten dollars Ralph had given her.

"Goodbye," Flora called after her when they parted. "Good luck!"

"Good luck to you!" Daphne called back. She had her luck all ready.

Daphne

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

DAPHNE HAINES, seventeen and lovely, finds life intolerable because of a nagging, jealous stepmother whose main aim is to promote a courtship between her own daughter, Crystal, and wealthy, attractive Ralph McKevitt. Catching a fleeting glimpse of Daphne, the "prize" young man admires her. Mrs. Haines, fearing the rivalry of the younger girl, schemes to eliminate her from the scene. Daphne dismays when she realizes how completely these two calculating women have her father in their power, comforts herself by spinning secret dreams of a day when someone will really love her—a man, big, powerful, handsome, like Ralph! A scolding quarrel is provoked between Haines and his wife because of the woman's reckless expenditures. Subtly Mrs. Haines draws Daphne into the brawl. Feeling the hopelessness of her situation, Daphne determines to make her own way in the world, and leaves for San Francisco. With twenty dollars capital she seeks employment and learns it is hard to find. Daphne has an unpleasant experience with a prospective employer and in her haste to get away from him, leaves a purse containing her last five dollars in his office. The wolf seems perilously close. Hunger seizes her and she walks the streets wondering what she can buy to eat with a nickel. She decides upon a cup of coffee. At the Java Inn, a cheap restaurant, a young man sensing Daphne's plight, buys her a plate of ham and eggs. His face seems vaguely familiar. On the way home in his car she discovers that her escort is none other than Ralph McKevitt, her stepfather's "prize" young man. Now life seems warm and rosy!

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

HE strong smell of boiling coffee penetrated Daphne's consciousness. It was morning; old Mrs. Hinckle in the kitchen was preparing her favorite brew. Daphne knew that the old lady slept in the kitchen, on the hard, lumpy couch between the stove and the table. "Aber, sometimes I lay down here, I guess it's good enough for me," she would mumble in her hoarse, guttural old voice if any of the roomers would hear her there. But they all knew that the other rooms were always rented.

Miss Viola, her daughter, the "Madame Hinckle" of the dress making sign in the window, slept on the green plush couch in the parlor, and Daphne herself had what had once been the dining room, separated from Miss Viola's parlor by perpetually locked and closed folding doors of dark, varnished wood.

Mrs. Hinckle made coffee twice a day, before breakfast, and before dinner, in a tall blue agate pot with a tin cover. The rest of the day it simmered on the back of the stove, sending out its stale, acrid odor to mingle with the dampness of the halls, the old, musty smell of unaired beds, yellow soap, boiled dinner and the sweet-sour messes that usually shared the place of honor on the back of the stove.

"With the privilege of the kitchen," Miss Viola said when Daphne rented the room, but Daphne had never made use of the privilege. It was bad enough to have to go through it in the mornings on her way to the splashy, dark little bathroom which an absent-minded architect had apparently forgotten until the house was finished, and then nonchalantly placed a vacant spot on the back porch.

There was always someone in the kitchen. Sometimes it was one of the married women from upstairs, stirring something over the fire or "washing out a little something" in one of the laundry tubs on the back porch. And Daphne had wanted to accept, had wanted to give friendliness for the friendliness they gave her, but a tight, hard shyness held her back.

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it," Flora's shrug seemed to say, and after a while Mrs. Hinckle didn't offer her coffee.
